Excerpt from An Address to the Freeholders of Middlesex, Assembled at Free Masons Tavern, in Great Queen Street, Upon Monday the 20th of December 1779: Being the Day Appointed for a Meeting of the Freeholders, for the Purpose of Establishing Meetings, to Maintain and Support, the Freedom of Election

The degree of attention, which ought in reason to be paid by the Representative in Parliament to the Instructions of his Constituents, has. often been the subject of controversy. For my own part, I must freely confess,, that in every instance, in which hitherto the sentiments of the Electors of Great Britain have been conveyed to the Elected, the latter may be justified, in paying no further degree of attention to them, than the arguments, considered independently of the authority of the Persons instructing, or remonstrating, appear to deserve.
