

Chrisette is an ambitious young lady on the brink of her love life. Needing to step into her trousseaux as a household wife, she is coping with a foundering betrothal and the lure of an extremely charming young corps member. But when on the scent of this attracting love another woman came into the picture and cause havoc on her chance with the knowledge of this lady being his fiancée, Chrisette heads out on a trail of jealousy beyond any code of love, but that of her own illegitimate urge. And incidentally, with one erroneous escapade, she finds herself together in his strange world that presents one hell of a future, leaving callous challenges. But even as it tends to destroy them, Chrisette knows they must find a way of escape, because there is no turning back. Emmanuel Nwachukwu, in this yet another riveting spellbinder, shows peerless skill at the shifting dynamics between conscience and emotion, illicit and licit, theories and practicalities.
