

The novel is set in the late nineteenth century and derived from a basic element of reality: the Cullinan, the most famous diamond in the world. It was discovered inside a rock but its missing large part was never found. The author, with a proficient descriptive ability, tries to reveal the true story of Cullinans missing part and of its finder, James Rundell, a young Irish shepherd. The novel, in which the author uncovers a mystical reality upon the readers eyes, takes its audience to distant lands, oceans, sailing ships and adventurous characters.
